

Have you ever been in a situation where you felt like giving up, perhaps helpless and alone? Faye Mosby can relate. In fact she has songs that speak to the heart of the matter. She is a survivor with a story rooted in faith. This strength is what makes her music a ministry of healing. Many fans say Faye's music ushers people into the presence of God.

An ordained elder, evangelist, and psalmist, Faye has traveled nationally ministering the word of God in teaching, preaching and in song. She overcame obstacles that could have stopped her ministry or worse could have cut her life short. In a twist of fate that could only be described as Divine Intervention, Faye was inflicted with a gash that required medical attention. A quick series of medical tests later, Faye, at age 37, was diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer, an aggressive cancer. Faye underwent a radical mastectomy. The radiation treatment that was meant to rid her body of cancer severely burned her vocal chords. Faye's father having died less than a year before, this event would culminate in leading her towards the ministry of music. "I didn't know very much scripture by memory, but

I focused on the message "By His Stripes I am Healed," Faye says. Having had a full professional business career, Faye knows a lot about determination. Her faith kept her going. During this tumultuous time, Faye wrote her first song, "With Healing Hands", although at first she didn't write the song for herself, God had another plan. "God is so gracious. God wants to use us", Faye says. She had received the boldness she desired and her ministry began to grow.

When she finally got to the studio and decided to record, her husband who appeared to be in excellent health was diagnosed with prostate cancer. She continued recording as God requested her to. Her husband became healthy and went to work. But later he took a turn for the worse and became paralyzed and eventually succumbed to his illnesses.

Often times after ministering in song people request that she pray for them to overcome an obstacle in their lives. Faye says. She enjoys ministering church to church and at non-traditional venues such as ministering the gospel in song on a cruise ship. Bobby Jones called Faye a "great song writer". Faye believes she is a "Music Missionary on a mission to do what the great commission has called us to do."

Faye grew up in North Little Rock, AR, where she now resides after living in St. Louis, MO thirty-plus years.
